Tanzania Internship

The People-to-People Intern/Volunteer Program works with partner organizations – Schools in the Arusha region, Women In Action (WIA), Shanga, Huruma Children Center, Rehoboth Orphans Family, Precious Orphanage, Initiative for Youth, Mkombozi, Mawana Youth and Women Development, Africa Volunteer House, Roots and Shoots and with the Terrawatu NGO. Interns/Volunteers will spend approximately 20 hours per week at their intern/volunteer sites. The intern/volunteer program runs from June 20 to July 30 each year.

In addition to interning/volunteering, there are several other components of the People-to-People Intern/Volunteer Program. Interns/Volunteers from all five (5) programs will live together and jointly participate in an orientation, Kiswahili classes, seminars, cultural activities, group trips, and a final retreat. Each program will also meet individually for weekly group dinners.

Tanzania Seminar

Tanzania, known for its natural wonders from Mt. Kilimanjaro to the Serengeti, is one of the most unique countries in Africa because of both its post-colonial socialist background and its relative stability and honest leadership in an unstable region. Washington College offers students a summer course on politics, history, culture, economy, and sustainable development in Tanzania itself.

The course focuses on the familiar problems associated with Africa: poverty, unemployment, health, debt, and the conflicts between tradition and the lures of a changing world. Students are enriched by travel to one of Tanzania's national parks, traditional Maasai communities, coffee co-ops, government agencies, and health care centers.

Students receive four credits for participating in the Tanzania program and for writing a final research paper.

Hansard Scholars Programme

The Washington College in England Program is a Tuition/Room based at The Hansard Society for Parliamentary Government in association with The London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE).

The Hansard Society for Parliamentary Government (HSP) developed The Hansard Scholars Programme in Parliamentary and Public Policy Studies to offer students a chance to study the workings of parliamentary democracy and to stimulate interest in its principles.

Students majoring in political science, economics or other social sciences, history, international relations, or business administration will find the program particularly relevant to their studies. Hansard Scholars are assigned to work with Members of the House of Commons, the House of Lords, the political parties, public, social policy, and research institutes.

The Hansard Scholars Programme internship placement is accompanied by three courses at the London School of Economics and Political Science. The London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE) is a unique institution among UK universities. It is the only British university specializing solely in the study of the social sciences, and has a world-wide reputation in the field.

The program is located in London, considered to be one of the world's most exciting cosmopolitan cities, offering various amusements, such as, trendy clubs, cinemas, restaurants, shops, theaters, historic sites, and two thousand years of architectural history.
