WASHINGTON COLLEGE
ACADEMY of LIFELONG LEARNING

invites you on a special trip to

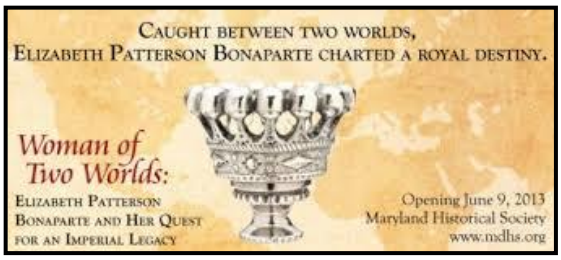
Maryland Historical Society
Baltimore, MD

Thursday, March 6, 2014
8:30 AM – 4:00 PM

The Maryland Historical Society houses the largest collection of Americana in the world. Here, you will find everything from Peale portraits of Revolutionary War leaders to exhibits of Baltimore wedding quilts and children's toys. We will spend the early part of the day in docent-led tours of your choice of several exhibits. There will also be time to explore additional exhibits on your own. The Society is located in the Mt. Vernon area of Baltimore, the heart of the historic area, along with many art galleries (e.g. The Walters Gallery of Art), wonderful restaurants, historic churches, antique galleries, and shops. At the conclusion of the docent tours, you may opt to stay longer at the MHS or wander the historic area at your leisure. Lunch will be on your own at one of the many wonderful restaurants within easy walking distance of the Historical Society (no more than four blocks). A list of suggested restaurants and maps will be provided.

Current exhibits at the society are:

- WOMAN OF TWO WORLDS: Elizabeth Patterson Bonaparte and Her Quest for an Imperial Legacy
- DIVIDED VOICES: Maryland in the Civil War
- MARYLAND STORIES: The Old Line State from Native Americans to the Star-Spangled Banner and Beyond
- MARYLAND'S FINER SIDE: Decorative and Fine Arts in Maryland



Bus leaves at 8:30 AM in the former Fresh & Green parking lot, returning by 4:00 PM.

Cost: $25 members; $30 non-members for tours and bus fare; lunch is on your own.

Reservations deadline is Monday, March 3 – trip limit is 14 participants!

Yes, I want to attend the MD Historical Society trip on March 6.
