

Literary House Press Paperback Publications

$14.95

This marvelous collection of essays depicts the different eras, sports, and characters that shaped Washington College's athletic program. These stories portray the people - such as legendary coach Tom Kibler and Major Leaguer Bill "Swish" Nicholson - whose guidance and talent helped make the program what it is today.

Washington: The College at Chester is a testament to the people and events that shaped a colonial Maryland school into what is arguably among the best small liberal arts and sciences colleges in American today. Through a collection of voices and images, the book tells the coming-of-age story of a small college on Maryland's Eastern Shore that was distinguished from the very start by its unique connection to George Washington.

$49.95

$14.95

Here on the Chester gets at the soul of Chestertown, Maryland, one of the oldest towns in America, home to the first college named for its founder, George Washington - and an eclectic, colorful citizenry. Today that includes not just watermen, but also journalists, artists, poets, academics, and others whose writings are here gathered together to reflect the history and ways of one of the most sought-after destinations in the environs of the Chesapeake Bay.

- James Conaway

Our purpose in this anthology is to sort through the abundance of good and bad Chesapeake literature, choose some of the choicest fare and serve it up on a single plate for the pleasure, enlightenment and convenience of readers.

- Richard Harwood

$14.95