

Washington College: in person

Mary Jane and Bill Willis, current co-chairs of the Parents Council, have always been involved in their children's education. When daughter Whitney '05 chose Washington College, they welcomed the opportunity to play an active role at the school. Their experiences during Whitney's four years have created an affection and strong loyalty to the College.

"When Whitney entered Washington as a freshman, we were delighted that she had chosen a small school with a great academic reputation," they say. "As we became more familiar with the school, we were amazed at the opportunities available to the students. The quality of the faculty and classroom experiences rivals any of our other children's education. The out-of-classroom experiences were just as important to Whitney's growth. Whitney enjoyed the opportunity to start an education club which benefits both the students and the greater College community."

Now, as the parents of a graduate, Mary Jane and Bill are encouraging Whitney to continue the family's support of the College. "We realize the expenses related to operating a first-class institution. We encourage all alumni, parents and friends of the College to give back so current and future students can enjoy the same wonderful opportunities. Whitney has graduated, but our family will always be active members of the Washington College community."
