

Compleat Angler Fellowship Program for Ethnographic & Archaeological Research on the Chesapeake Bay
Department of Anthropology, Washington College

DESCRIPTION

The Compleat Angler Fellowship Program promotes academic excellence and scientific exploration in Anthropology by providing Anthropology Majors/Minors financial support to engage in faculty-supervised research on past and present cultures of the Chesapeake Bay. Working closely with faculty to integrate classroom learning with real-world research, fellows are provided the opportunity to build bridges between Washington College and the larger region, enrich the lives of those living on the Chesapeake, and conceptualize and carry out exceptional research as undergraduates.

The Fund awards grants of up to $1,000. Research funds can be used to support travel (including airfare and ground transportation), board and lodging, equipment, access fees, research equipment use fees, analysis fees, reimbursement to research subjects, and reimbursement for lost wages. Funds may not be applied to tuition and fees for course credit-generating field programs nor may they provide wages for work conducted at a facility where the fellow is otherwise employed.

ELIGIBILITY

Applicants must be currently enrolled Washington College students who are declared Anthropology majors or minors. Applicants must have completed at least 16 hours of coursework within Anthropology while maintaining a cumulative 3.0 GPA. Grants are open to sophomores, juniors and graduating seniors. First-year students are not eligible to participate in this program. Fellowships are awarded through a competitive process. Priority will be given to students who have a defined plan to present or publish their research findings. Applicants are eligible to receive a total of two Compleat Angler Fellowship Grants in their lifetime.

FELLOWSHIP OBLIGATIONS

Upon completion of the research, students will submit:

- A. A two-page, single-spaced synopsis of the research. This synopsis should include:
  - 1. A brief explanation of the research goals.
  - 2. Discussion of the methods utilized.
  - 3. A description and discussion of the findings.
  - 4. A description of potential future outcomes including contributions to a senior thesis, plans to present the findings at a conference, or plans to publish the results in a journal.
  - 5. A discussion of how these funds provided added value to the student's Washington College academic experience.
- B. Appendix: Please provide an accounting of all funds spent.
