Jonathan Martin is a correspondent for Politico, where he has covered the 2008 and 2012 presidential elections. He previously covered politics for The National Review and The Hotline.

The political ascendancy of Ronald Reagan. Since its establishment in 2000, the C.V. Starr Center for the Study of the American Experience has explored our nation’s history in innovative ways. Through educational programs, scholarship, and public outreach, and especially by fostering the art of written history, the Starr Center seeks to bridge the divide between past and present, and between the academic world and the public at large. From its base in the circa-1746 Custom House along Chestertown’s colonial waterfront, the Center serves as a portal onto a world of opportunities for Washington College students. Among its latest projects is “Historically Corrected,” a regular online feature on politics and history for the New York Times. For more information on the Center, visit http://starrcenter.washcoll.edu.

The Louis L. Goldstein Program in Public Affairs was established in 1990 to encourage students to enter public service by introducing them to exemplary leaders, both in and out of government. The Goldstein Program has hosted journalists, political activists, foreign policy analysts, diplomats, military commanders and government officials of both national and international stature. It sponsors lectures, symposia, and visiting fellows, student participation in models and conferences, and other projects that bring students and faculty together with leaders experienced in developing public policy. For more information, visit http://academics.washcoll.edu/goldsteinprogram.

THE ANATOMY OF AN ELECTION
A SPECIAL SERIES ON AMERICAN POLITICS

SEPTEMBER 18, OCTOBER 2, OCTOBER 16, OCTOBER 23, 2012
WASHINGTON COLLEGE
POLITICS

with Matt Bai and Richard Ben Cramer
TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18 | 5:30 PM
DECKER THEATRE, GIBSON CENTER FOR THE ARTS

Matt Bai is the chief political correspondent for the New York Times Magazine, where he covered both the 2004 and 2008 presidential campaigns. He also writes the “Political Times” online column for the Times. Bai is the author of The Argument: Inside the Battle to Remake Democratic Politics, which chronicles the rise of the first Internet-age political movement and the people who built it. Richard Ben Cramer is the author of What It Takes: The Way to the White House, which has been widely acclaimed as one of the all-time best books on American electoral politics; Politico recently called it “the greatest modern presidential campaign book.” Cramer, who is also the author of five other books, won the Pulitzer Prize for International Reporting in 1979.

TECHNOLOGY

with Sasha Issenberg
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 2 | 5:30 PM
HYNSON LOUNGE, HODSON HALL

Sasha Issenberg is the author of the new book The Victory Lab: The Secret Science of Winning Campaigns, published by Crown Books in September 2012. It follows the maverick operatives and academics — armed with research from behavioral psychology, data-mining, and social-science experiments — who are now calling the shots in many political war rooms, in the process transforming the highest-stakes industry in the country. Issenberg, a columnist for Slate and the Washington correspondent for Monocle, covered the 2008 election for The Boston Globe.

MONEY

with Trevor Potter
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 16 | 5:30 PM
HYNSON LOUNGE, HODSON HALL

Trevor Potter, a former Chairman of the Federal Election Commission, has been described by the American Bar Association Journal as “hands-down one of the top lawyers in the country on the delicate intersection of politics, law and money.” He served as General Counsel to John McCain’s 2000 and 2008 presidential campaigns, and is the founding president and general counsel of the Campaign Legal Center, a Washington-based nonprofit that focuses on campaign finance issues. Potter makes regular appearances on The Colbert Report, where he advises Stephen Colbert on campaign finance issues and helped set up Colbert’s Super PAC, “Americans for a Better Tomorrow, Tomorrow.”

MEDIA

with Jack Bohrer ’06, Betsy Fischer, James Hohmann, and Jonathan Martin
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 23 | 5:30 PM
HYNSON LOUNGE, HODSON HALL

Jack Bohrer has written about politics for The New Republic, Politico, Salon, and other publications, and is completing a book about Robert F. Kennedy under contract with Bloomsbury Press. He is a 2006 graduate of Washington College, where he majored in Political Science and was a student associate at the Starr Center. Betsy Fischer is the longtime Executive Producer of Meet the Press, NBC’s top-rated Sunday morning public affairs program and the longest running television program in the world. She has worked on the network’s coverage of the 2000, 2004, 2008, and 2012 elections, and has received numerous awards, including two Emmys and the Walter Cronkite Award for Excellence in Political Journalism. James Hohmann is a national political correspondent for Politico and previously served as a reporter for the Washington Post and the Los Angeles Times. He is at work on a book about the 1976 election and the